Sacramento-based Legal-Tech Startup Expands Access to Expungement

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CleanSlate™ Launches in California to Bring Automated Record Expungement Within Reach for Millions

Sacramento, CA — December 6, 2025 — CleanSlate™, a Sacramento-based legal-tech startup dedicated to restoring second chances through automated record expungement, today announced its official California launch and $350,000 seed funding initiative.

Founded by David Johnson, Jr., CleanSlate offers a flat-rate digital service that guides individuals through state-specific expungement filings for only $175, reducing a process that typically costs $900 to $2,500 and requires legal assistance most people can't afford.

"CleanSlate was built on the belief that one mistake shouldn't define a lifetime," said David Johnson, Jr., Founder & CEO. "We're using technology to make record clearing fast, affordable, and accessible to millions of Californians who deserve a fresh start."

The platform combines AI-driven questionnaires with secure document generation and optional attorney review. Users input their details, confirm accuracy, and receive state-approved forms ready to download or file online in minutes.

Market Impact: Over 25 million Americans are eligible for expungement, representing a $4.3 billion opportunity. CleanSlate plans to expand statewide through 2026 and nationwide by 2027 via legal-aid and re-entry partnerships.

About CleanSlate™:
